

The Nashville Food Project

100,000 people in the greater Nashville area don't get enough to eat. Here's what the Nashville Food Project does to combat hunger in its community.

PEOPLE MAKE IT HAPPEN

8

part-time
staff

11
interns

10,413

volunteer hours

4,487
volunteers

GARDENS GROW FOOD AND A SENSE OF COMMUNITY

2

diversified gardens

50 types
of crops

8,620 lbs.
of produce
harvested

9,000
seeds

started in 2014

GATHERING TO EAT MEETS PHYSICAL AND EMOTIONAL NEEDS

2 food
trucks

7 neighborhoods

14 community
sites served

32,400
delivered meals

WORKING WITH COMMUNITY PARTNERS HELPS ACHIEVE SHARED MISSIONS

20 local farms

contribute along with farmers' markets, grocery stores and hunters

30¢

direct food
cost per meal

28,223 lbs.

of food recovered
from local markets
and farms

PRACTICING UNIVERSAL HOSPITALITY HELPS CONNECT WITH OTHERS

650

bouquets of flowers
given away

WHO IS NEEDY? ALL OF US.

“ If you ask me how many people who come to the meal are needy, my answer will be ‘all of us.’ We all have needs, whether social, or physical nourishment, or the need to feel heard, or feel important. ”
- Nate Paulk, community partner

Source:

The Nashville Food Project, 2013

Infographic design

Jessamyn Jade Rubio

Produced by Faith & Leadership. Visit us at www.faithandleadership.com.